Operation Athena

This segment of Canada's contribution was geographically-focused on Afghanistan itself. Under the overarching umbrella of NATO's International Security Assistance Force (ISAF), Operation Athena officially began on July 17, 2003.

War of 1812

The War of 1812 is considered a major event in Canadian military history. While it concluded with a return of the status quo, the three-year conflict showed that Canadians (i.e., British subjects in Upper and Lower Canada) saw themselves as

This saw Canadian Brigadier General Peter Devlin take command of ISAF's Kabul Multi-National Brigade. Two days later, the 3rd Battalion, The Royal Canadian Battalion Regiment Group (3 RCR), deployed to Kabul, Afghanistan's capital city, for Canada's first rotational contribution.
